Greetings Colleagues and SOURCES Attendees,

Welcome to the fourth Annual SOURCES Conference. I am excited to be able to host this conference here in Orlando on the lovely campus of the University of Central Florida. I hope that you take advantage of the great restaurants and attractions that the area has to offer, if you are in town for the weekend. You and approximately 175 other educators, interested in effective practices related to teaching with primary sources, will be in attendance. I am thoroughly excited that so many will be here to share ideas, engage in discussions, and learn about new, effective, and engaging ways to integrate primary sources into K-12 education.

We have a great day planned, with sessions packed full of wonderful information and pedagogical practices. Presenters will provide strategies for using primary sources to help K-12 students engage in learning, develop critical thinking skills, and build content knowledge, specifically in one or more of the following ways:

- Justifying conclusions about whether a source is primary or secondary depending upon the time or topic under study;
- Describing examples of the benefits of teaching with primary sources;
- Analyzing a primary source using Library of Congress tools;
- Accessing teaching tools and primary sources from www.loc.gov/teachers;
- Identifying key considerations for selecting primary sources for instructional use (for example, student needs and interests, teaching goals, etc.);
- Accessing primary sources and teaching resources from www.loc.gov;
- Analyzing primary sources in different formats;
- Analyzing a set of related primary sources in order to identify multiple perspectives;
- Demonstrating how primary sources can support at least one teaching strategy (for example, literacy, inquiry-based learning, historical thinking, etc.); and
- Presenting a primary source-based activity that helps students engage in learning, develop critical thinking skills and construct knowledge.

In closing, I would like to thank each of you for attending the fourth Annual SOURCES Conference and for bringing your expertise, related to teaching with primary sources, to this professional gathering. I hope to see you here again next year, in January of 2019.

Keep on teaching with primary sources!

Primary Source Interactive

KidCitizen (https://www.kidcitizen.net)

KidCitizen introduces a new way for young students (K-5) to engage with history through primary sources. In KidCitizen episodes, children interactively explore Congress and civic engagement through historical primary resources, and connect what they find with their daily lives.

KidCitizen episodes capitalize on the active and social nature of young children's learning. They use primary sources for rich demonstrations, interactions, and models of literacy in the course of innovative hands-on activities that make academic content meaningful, build on prior experiences, and foster visual literacy and historical inquiry.

KidCitizen also includes cloud software tools that let educators create their own episodes and share them with students. Using KidCitizen tools, educators can create activities using primary source photographs that are especially relevant to their students and community. The KidCitizen tools runs on the Muzzy Lane Author platform.

KidCitizen episodes run on PCs, Macs, and iOS and Android mobile devices. The episodes can be accessed from the KidCitizen website www.kidcitizen.net. All are free to play, and a teacher’s guide accompanies each episode. KidCitizen is part of the Congress, Civic Participation, and Primary Sources Project, and is supported by a grant from the Library of Congress.

iCivics Upgrades DBQuest (https://www.icivics.org/products/dbquest)

New platform, new modules, new and deeper learning with documents!

DBQuest introduces students to major questions in civics and history. They are given a Big Question as a guiding light to shine on the three selected primary resources. Each document challenges the student to dig into the text itself and find the relevant information through document–based supporting questions. Students and their teachers will be able to select between two modes – guided and freeform. The guided experience provides scaffolding throughout the tool, while free form gives the student the tools without the additional assistance. Both allow students to produce a thoughtful analysis of the resources provided. The tool takes students through the same 4-steps for each source:

1. Rate the document for usefulness and determine perspective
2. Identify and analyze the text and visual elements that assist with answering the questions
3. Address the supporting questions in their own words
4. Summarize their findings into a response to the Big Question
Primary Source Interactive
Eagle Eye Citizen (https://eagleeyecitizen.org)

Eagle Eye Citizen engages middle and high school students in solving and creating interactive challenges about Congress, American history, civics, and government with Library of Congress primary sources in order to develop students’ civic understanding and historical thinking skills. Created by the Roy Rosenzweig Center for History and New Media at George Mason University, Eagle Eye Citizen is a Congress, Civic Participation, and Primary Sources Project and is supported by a grant from the Library of Congress.
